ACRL 2009 results

Although the floor plan and the size of the ACRL halls were not impressive, the ACRL tradeshow in Seattle was very busy this year. In the first hour after the entrance was opened, dozens and dozens of librarians and institutions representatives walked the floor. Most of them literally begged us to scan their cards and give them more information about our manufacturing possibilities and new design items.

There weren't many architects, only a couple but the number of leads from universities, schools and colleges has been outgrown. Seattle offered us chilly walks through downtown, the lakeshore and it gave us a European feel when we walked through the farmers market. We are pleased with the results of ACRL 2009 in Seattle.

Most Wanted BRIDGE

This month's "most wanted" is the BRIDGE collection, that has functional and funky items, and represents a innovative combination of hardwood and steel. Bridge is designed to ensure a sleek and contemporary look that comes in a variety of standard finishes. Its cutting-edge design is perfect for any learning environment.

Perfect symmetry

The combination of metal elements and warm hardwoods create distinctive silhouettes in a fine collection inclined towards functionality.
