Strategic combination

Pictures: Penrose Branch Library, CO

Hardwood and steel are innovatively combined under a sleek and contemporary, functional and funky look. All welds and grinds are smoothed and legs may be custom painted using an electrostatically applied epoxy powder for resiliency. Work surfaces "float" atop steel pintels via a concealed steel plate assembly. This design is the perfect counterpart for any progressive learning environment.

MOST WANTED - BOOK TRUCKS

This month's "most wanted" items are the BOOK TRUCKS:

Durecon shelving designs allow configurations to adapt to changing needs, become flexible and mobile. Nut and bolt hardware is included with every piece to allow easy lock assembly. This steel display book truck has 4 wheels, is double sided and has shelves with backstops that keep books from spilling.

The American Library Association tradeshow held in Chicago at McCormick Place in July was a big event. The hall was bigger than any other show, with hundreds of exhibitors waiting on important library people. There were thousands of librarians walking the floor and stopping by Palmieri for a fortune cookie, a cute green tote bag and more information about the new exciting designs displayed by Palmieri. The hydraulic arms implemented on P2 Lagoon table were a total success.

Many thought that the 3form mock computer screens were actual touch screens and we politely explained that you can hock up 4 computer monitors and move it around. The CPU's go in the base of the Lagoon Table and the colors can be customized as per customer's needs. It was a smash!

The amazing opportunities in library furniture design!

There is more good news about Palmieri. A few months ago Palmieri added a Research & Development Department. This department is based on innovation and creation. A new addition to the R&D department was initiated. Palmieri approached a very talented Graphic Artist that works on P2 Workspace Solutions items and is able to transpose diverse design ideas into virtual environments that look pretty much real.

Palmieri continues to push forward as a trend setter for innovation!
